

Paris 2011 Journal

Thursday April 7, 2011 - Our rental agent, Gerald Deconclois invited us to his home for dinner. What a lovely and spacious apartment. He had another guest named Sally.

We started in the living room with "caperinha," an aperitif from Brazil and hot pastry-covered small sausages.

Then we moved into the dining room.

He started us with a Coquille St. Jacques followed by a baked fish (bar), which I thought was so pretty that I had to photograph it.

Sally was good enough to take a photo of the three of us.

It ended with Sally driving us back to our apartment since we were there past the closure of the Metro. Charming evening.
